FRIDAY.

Hon. Julius Avery, who was the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Sixth district of Illinois at the late election, against Hon. R. C. Cook, died, at his residence in Ottawa, Monday morning. His complaint was typhoid fever and heart disease. He was 69 years of age.

The only good result that can be obtained by the Tribune's association of "Dirty Work," Logan with the leaders of the "new party" movement is that it may be the means of defeating him in his pretensions candidature for the Senate.

The Democracy of the Dayton, (Ohio) district invite rather than fear the contest for Hon. L. D. Campbell's seat proposed by the Schenck people. They desire an opportunity to bring out the fact by proof before a committee of congress that the protection ring at the east sent $30,000 into the district to carry Schenck's election by bribery and corruption.

LOGAN'S MAJORITY.
The official returns of the vote for Congressman-at-large show a majority for John A. Logan of 24,602, about 25,000 less than his majority two years ago.

The vote by congressional districts shows a Radical majority of only 3,007. In 1868 the Radical congressmen had a majority of 47,164.

SAM B. LAUGHLIN.
The Evansville Courier, of Tuesday publishes the following tribute to the bravery and unselfish daring of our young friend, Sam Laughlin, second clerk of the ill-fated City of Evansville. The Courier says:

William N. Lodge, late clerk of the steamer Shamrock, who was on the City of Evansville, gives the following statement: About half past four o'clock I was awakened by an alarm from below us. Hastily dressing, I stepped out on the guards and saw that the Norman and Pine Bluff were in danger. Starting back, I met Mr. Sam B. Laughlin, who asked me to assist him in getting the hose on the hurricane deck. After doing this, I went down on deck, where I met Mr. Pennington, who told me we were out loose, and had better save ourselves. He ran aft, and I followed. We jumped from our boat to the Sam Orr, and from thence to Brown's wharf. I do not think the City of Evansville would have burned, had she not been cut loose, as the Sam Orr and the Florence Lee were between us and the Pine Bluff. Too much praise cannot be awarded to the gallant conduct of Sam B. Laughlin. He was the last to leave the boat, and certainly saved the lives of a lady and gentlemen, passengers, whose home is at Cape May. The name of Sam Laughlin hereafter should be a synonym of bravery and chivalry.

BUTLER'S PROPOSITION.
The proposition of Ben Butler to vitalize the Radical party by involving the country in a war with England about the Alabama claims, was received with one general outburst of indignation throughout the entire Union. The Radical and Democratic press were alike unsparing in their denunciations; yet the "powers that be" at Washington intimate a purpose to set upon the infamous proposition in utter disregard of the temper and wishes of the people. The evidence of this purpose may be read in the following "buncombe" dispatch which reaches us from Washington under date of the 23rd instant:

The following, dictated at the White House, appears verbatim in both administration papers, and is the latest presidential comment on the matter to which it relates:

"The Alabama case rests now with Great Britain. Its settlement is her task, as she deliberately inflicted injury upon our commerce, and deliberately prolonged the rebellion. Satisfaction for these grave wrongs should be deliberately made. The United States makes no entangling alliances with other powers. That is her traditional policy; at once her duty and her covenant; and that is today the attitude of President Grant. He does not propose to take advantage of the difficulties of a friendly nation. Unlike France, which interfered to establish a new empire on our southern frontier, and unlike England, which exerted all the influence of her aristocracy in favor of the rebellion at a moment when the President relied upon the confidence of the English ministry and the English masses, believing that they would seize the fitting occasion to close up the only remaining cause of difference between people speaking the same language, and animated by the most fraternal feeling towards each other."

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

The prudence and deliberation that have characterized the course of England in the present European embroglio, command the praise of every friend of the human race. The Queen and a majority of her cabinet have disapproved the tone of the communication of their foreign minister, and indicated an earnest desire for a peaceful solution of existing complications. Since Gortschakoff's letter to Lord Granville manifested a like anxiety on the part of the Russian government, there is little cause for apprehending war.

The anti-Russian combination that was talked of, will not be formed. In fact we are assured in late dispatches that Italy peremptorily refuses to be a party to it, and urges the organization of a Congress of the powers to the treaty for the consideration of the Car's claims and grievances. It is therefore confidently asserted that the demands of Russia, possibly modified, will be acceded to.

It has been remarked, with truth, that it is almost an unprecedented fact that the war now raging between France and Germany actually seems not only not to make a general European war easy, but even to render it impossible. It fills the stage of action, and so effects the relations of the other powers, that new warlike combinations are scarcely possible of formation. This is about the first redeeming feature of the Franco-German struggle we have had occasion to point out.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE IN 1872.
From the election returns of this year, taken with what is known outside of the elections, the New York Sun has been classifying the thirty-seven States of this Union and their three hundred and eighteen electoral votes, with reference to the Presidential election of 1872. And in this way the Sun arrives at the following conclusions:

With a satisfactory candidate for the Presidency, these fourteen States are certain, or reasonably certain to go Republican, namely:

Illinois.....	16
New Hampshire.....	5
Iowa.....	8
New Jersey.....	7
Kansas.....	3
Ohio.....	21
Louisiana.....	7
Pennsylvania.....	26
Maine.....	7
Rhode Island.....	3
Massachusetts.....	13
South Carolina.....	5
Michigan.....	13
Vermont.....	5
Minnesota.....	4
Wisconsin.....	8
Nebraska.....	3

Total.....150
A Democratic candidate whose record, or the platform whereon he is placed, does not offensively thrust into the canvass the issues settled by the war and by reconstruction, would be certain, or reasonably certain, of getting the votes of these fourteen States, namely:

Alabama.....	8
North Carolina.....	9
California.....	5
Oregon.....	3
Delaware.....	3
Tennessee.....	10
Indiana.....	13
Texas.....	6
Kentucky.....	11
Virginia.....	11
Maryland.....	7
West Virginia.....	5
Missouri.....	11
New York.....	33
Total.....	135

The six States which we will now name may be regarded as doubtful, with the chances rather in favor of their voting for an unexceptionable Democratic candidate, namely:

Arkansas.....	5
Mississippi.....	7
Connecticut.....	5
Nevada.....	3
Florida.....	4
Georgia.....	9
Total.....	43

Here then are 318 electoral votes, a majority of which is 159. The Republicans would seem to be in a fair way, and will need but 10 from the doubtful column to insure their triumph. The Democrats are pretty certain of 135, and will require 25 from the doubtful column to give them a victory.

The Democratic "plate" is fixed up differently. The States of Florida and Nevada declared themselves Democratic on the 8th instant, by very decided majorities. The last time Georgia was permitted to assert herself, viz., in 1868 she gave a Democratic victory of over 50,000. The State of Arkansas is morally certain to go Democratic in 1872, and the Democracy are not at all disposed to yield Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Here are 53 electoral votes which, in all probability, will be thrown for the Democratic candidate, forming, with the 135 conceded to the Democracy, a total of 188 votes, or a majority of 28—a majority that even the loss of Pennsylvania would not overcome.

One of the certainest things that remain for the development of the future, is the election of a Democratic president in 1872.

Richmond of Radical Corruption.
The New York Nation is one of the ablest and most respectable among the weekly newspapers published in this country. It has always supported the Republican side in politics, and has, until lately, had a very decided leaning toward Grant and the administration. In the last number, however, it cuts loose from all such footings and denounces Grant after this fashion:

"It is altogether a pitiful story, one of the most pitiful in political history. The wreck of Gen. Grant's fame is a national misfortune. That fame was a national possession, and it was the best people of the country, those whom he is now repudiating or refusing to rely on, who built it up by giving him the hearty and unflinching support in the field and at the polls which alone enabled him to make head against the worthless gang whom he has now taken into his confidence, and who will now use him for his destruction and the filling of their own pockets. We believe the opinion of the shrewdest observer that the work of manipulation and management will be done with sufficient dexterity to give him control of the convention in 1872. Of course it is rather soon to indulge in speculation on this subject, but it is not too soon for the friends of reform and good government to decide on what their course should be from this time forward. Their first duty clearly is to give no encouragement or support to the corrupt regime which is being established at Washington; the second to do what in them lies to prevent any man's getting the Republican nomination for the Presidency who seeks it as General Grant is seeking it; and the third, to see that if he does get it, it shall profit him nothing. The time has come for all friends of reform to stand firm and before the tide of corruption rises any higher. The present breed of politicians will assuredly do hard and will deceive many, as their progenitors have done in all ages, before they get their quietus, but get it they will eventually."

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Franklin County Items.
—Franklin county rolled up a majority of 293 for General Anderson and the whole Democratic ticket. Col. R. M. Hundley, the newly-fledged Radical, who expected the Democratic party to fall to pieces when he left it, ran against Washburn for a seat in the State Senate, and fell 200 votes behind his ticket.

—W. W. Barr, Democrat, was elected to the Legislature from Franklin county, by a majority of 288 votes over his Radical competitor, the notorious Sam Flanigan.

Johnson County Items.
—The Vienna Artery says: "Private news from headquarters informs us that Burnside has completed negotiations, and is coming with the iron for our railroad within ten days."

—A young man named H. B. Wiley dug one hundred and fifty bushels of potatoes from his potato patch near Vienna, from one and a half bushels of seed.

—The editor of the Vienna Artery has, at last, heard from the elections. Here's what he says about the result:

"The chicken trade has gone back on us. We expected to need twelve or thirteen dozen, and ordered accordingly, but it's one of the financial undertakings of the nineteenth century that has proven an inglorious failure. The result is very discouraging, but nevertheless we prepare for our journey up Salt River with an avowed and patient resignation that is truly characteristic of a desire to submit to the powers that be. Only a few hundred more votes and all would have been well, but they were not forthcoming, and so we are in a manner 'gone up the spout.' We tearfully clear the deck of our weather-beaten craft, rid her of broken spars, smashed capstan and torn sail, and head her for a more genial climate. We feel as if we were not long for this world any more. Flushed with victory the Democracy are planning all sorts of tyranny; they even talk of running Elizabeth Cady Stanton for the Vice Presidency, and if ever such a calamity should befall this proud America we should sign to play 'quits' and sleep with Noah and his fathoms."

Williamson County Items.
—The Marion Friend says that emigrants for the far West swarm through Marion every day. A considerable percentage of these are negroes.
